

PRESIDENT SETS THE PACE IN BIG PARADE FOR PREPAREDNESS

President Woodrow Wilson headed a monster parade in Washington which served to celebrate Flag day and demonstrate the sentiment of the marchers in favor of national preparedness.

The president carried one of the largest flags seen in the pageant. He wore white shoes, white duck trousers, white tie, blue coat and straw hat. He marched between William Gude, chairman of the arrangements committee, and Rudolph Kauffman, who wore long coats and silk "plug" hats.

—O—O— "CARDUI" JURY HARD AT IT— HAVE UNTIL JULY 4.

Wine of Cardui jury in Judge Carpenter's court started on its second day of balloting to get verdict in $100,000 suit of J. A. Patten against the American Medical ass'n. Case resulted from attack of A. M. A. on the Wine of Cardui as a quack patent medicine.

Judge Carpenter announced yesterday that he would give the jury until July 4 to reach a decision.
